

Everyone's Ugly

Ugly Fish safety ambassador, rock singer, television presenter, actor and charity worker, Angry Anderson, will be on the Ugly Fish Stand at The Safety Show.

Ugly Fish is a leading Australian sports and safety eyewear brand renowned for producing quality sports wraparound sunglasses that protect the eyes from harmful UV rays and reduce glare at work, on the water or even at the races.

Angry Anderson will be present on Wednesday, 26 October to engage with visitors and hand out tips on eye ware in the workplace.

The Flare model, for example, with indoor/outdoor lens, is perfect for working in and out of tunnels on a highway or railway. The lens automatically responds to light conditions, becoming lighter when working inside and darker when outdoors.

All the lenses in the Ugly Fish Safety Eyewear range comply with AS NZS standards, are optically correct with no distortion and have anti-fog and anti-scratch coatings. They are suitable for use with hard hats and earmuffs and the temples (arms) are generally shorter, slimmer and very flexible. Coverage is maximised to reduce risk of eye injury from dust and other particles and polarised products are available for those exposed to UV.

All Ugly Fish frames are made of TR-90 plastic, which is lightweight, flexible, durable, impact-resistant and will hold its shape for the life of the product. The lenses are of safety grade polycarbonate plastic, which has the highest possible impact resistance and is shatterproof.

Several models in the Safety range such as the Crusher (RS 6900) are available with RX prescription gaskets and can also have prescription lenses fitted directly into the frames. The RX gasket allows the user to interchange between various lens colour options, and the prescription is always shielded by the lens and is less likely to be scratched or damaged.
